Roberts PolyPro

Roberts PolyPro, powered by Pro Mach, manufactures and designs innovative plastic components that enhance packaging performance. The world's largest consumer companies depend on our solutions to improve their packaging and make their products more appealing to consumers. Our wide variety of innovative handles fit bottles of all shapes and sizes in any configuration. No matter if you have a single bottle or a multipack, our handles make it easier to pick up one or many of your products.

Roberts PolyPro's lightweight, compact handles and multi-pack carriers also support sustainability efforts by reducing material consumption and improving cube utilization. Our extruded handles and multi-pack carriers consume on average 5 to 35 percent less resin compared to injection molded products. Roberts

PolyPro products are made from extruded HDPE resin and when used with either PET or HDPE bottles make the entire package — bottles and handle — 100 percent recyclable.

We orient multipack handles before shipment and in the case of single bottle handles use a patented process of welding the handles together prior to shipment. On average, this process results in up to 40% more handles per pallet than loose handles shipped in bulk. The increase in units per pallet significantly decreases shipping costs, improves cube utilization, reduces the amount of corrugated board required, and lowers over-the-road fuel consumption and greenhouse gas emissions.
